

The long days of June are filled with the sounds of birds singing, grasshoppers chirping and bees 1 buzzing as they fly from flower to flower. These busy workers gather nectar from flowers like the dog-rose 2 and then turn it into honey. Swallows 3 glide gracefully over the meadow covered with scarlet poppies 4, foxgloves 5, buttercups 6 and daisies. An orange tip butterfly

7 flies over a shy hedgehog 8 creeping through the long grass. Two playful fox cubs 9 peep out at the people clearing up after a picnic 10. Wrappers, bottles and cans are being collected and will be brought home. Plastic bags, particularly, should never be left lying around. They can harm animals!
